The art of fine jewellery at Annoushka

3 June 2011

Jewellery designer Annoushka Ducas has joined forces with London's modern art scene to create an exhibition series showcasing original art works embellished with fine jewellery. Precious, the first instalment will start this week and feature 10 works by Dutch sculptor Bouke de Vries (far left) and then in September there's to be a collaboration with British multimedia artist Rosie Emerson (left) who creates feminine archetypes - from the mythical Artemis to the modern day supermodel.

De Vries, who takes inspiration from nature and spirituality, created his pieces from salvaged ceramics. Ducas first encountered de Vries, working alongside other collaborators, Samir Cedric and Zoe Knight, the founders of Debut Contemporary and the chemistry was instant: "As we started to work together, I discovered there were a lot of elements present in Annoushka's work that are also present in mine, such as butterfly and dragonfly motifs - so it was a good fit," said de Vries.

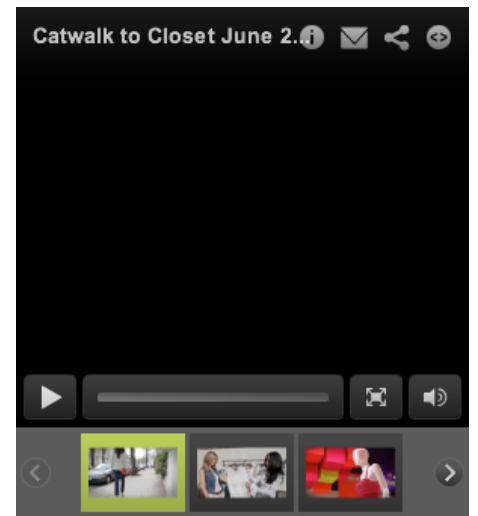

A real must see and a perfect opener for London Jewellery Week!

41 Cadogan Gardens London SW3 2TB, exhibition hours Mon-Sat 10am-6pm and til 7pm on
